McDonnell retiring, Palmer transferred

Top level Navy personnel changes will be effected for oceanographic activities located at the National Space Technology Laboratory in Hancock County in change of command ceremonies at 10 a.m. Friday.

Captain Ronald E. Hughes of Waveland, formerly deputy director of the Naval Oceanography Division-Oceanographer of the Navy in the office of the Chief of Naval Operations, will relieve Captain John R. McDonnell as commander, Naval Oceanography Command (CNOC).

McDonnell headed that organization since it was established at NSTL in 1978.

CNOC is the headquarters for the Naval Oceanography Command comprising some 3,000 officers, enlisted and civilian personnel located at over 60 locations throughout the world.

Its mission is to provide oceanographic, hydrographic and meteorological support services to the Navy worldwide.

At the same ceremony, Captain Charles H. Bassett, currently assistant commander for operations on the CNOC staff, will relieve Captain Wallace C. Palmer as commanding officer of the Naval Oceanographic Office (NAVOCEANO).

Captain Palmer has headed the organization since 1978.

NAVOCEANO is the largest single element under CNOC and is also located at NSTL.

NAVOCEANO has over 1,000 personnel at NSTL and aboard 12 ships and three aircraft under its regional control.

Rear Admiral Ross N. Williams, director, Naval Oceanography Division in the Office of the Chief of Naval Operations and the Oceanographer of the Navy will be guest speaker at the ceremony.

Hughes was born in Honolulu, Hawaii. He entered the Navy in 1952 and was soon after ordered to flight training at Pensacola, Fla. and was designated a Naval aviator in 1954.

In 1961, he earned the bachelor of science degree in meteorology at the Naval Postgraduate School.

He later earned the National Service Foundation scholarship and did graduate studies in meteorology and oceanography at the University of Hawaii.

In later tours, Hughes was assigned to the headquarters, Naval Weather Service, Command, the Naval Weather System Command in Washington, D.C. He was also commanding officer of the Fleet Numerical Weather Central at Monterey, Calif., the center for the Navy's environmental prediction system.

Hughes and his wife Judith and three of their seven children reside in Waveland.

Captain Bassett is a native of West Virginia. He entered the Navy in 1957 and was commissioned through the Officer Candidate School and ordered to the Naval Postgraduate School for study in meteorology.

After tours as a flight meteorologist and aboard the destroyer USS Epiphany, he returned to the Postgraduate School.

Hancock income growth among state's slowest

The Hancock County per capita income growth rate, in a 1978-79 comparison, ranks third lowest among the state's 82 counties.

Hancock County's 1979 per capita income is listed as $5,338, falling between a low of $4,134 in Carroll County to a high of $6,929 in Hinds County, according to a short report recently prepared by the Mississippi Research and Development Center.

The report lists Hancock's principal source of income as government.

The study, written by economic analyst Carol Mead of the center, is based on income information released in April by the U.S. Bureau of Economic Analysis.

As in 1978, Hinds County was the only county in which per capita income surpassed the national average. U.S. per capita income in 1978 was $6,757.

The state figure of $6,200 reached only 70.7 percent of the U.S. figure in 1978.

Several counties made large gains in per capita income levels, especially Issaquena County, Issaquena jumped from an income of $4,920 in 1978 to a fourth-ranked $7,539 in 1979.

This advance amounted to a 53.2 percent increase, the highest county growth rate in the state.

Other counties with high growth from 1978 to 1979 were Sharkey, 34.2 percent; Claiborne, 27.0 percent; and Tunica, 27.0 percent.

Three of these counties—Issaquena, Sharkey, and Tunica—show farming as their top income source.

According to Ms. Mead, "Farming income grew at a faster rate than any other sector of the Mississippi economy. So counties heavily dependent on farm income were able to make big gains in personal income."

Lamar County had the lowest growth rate of per capita income of the 82 counties, with 1.4 percent.

Other counties with per capita income growth below five percent were Jackson with 2.8 percent, and Hancock, 2.0 percent.

Hinds County has historically had the highest per capita income in Mississippi, and it remained the top county in 1979.

Hinds' $9,928 was followed by Lafayette's $7,496; Lee's $7,587; and Issaquena's $7,539.

Deep hole problem snagged in red tape

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.
State and local officials from Waveland to Washington D.C. are waiting for reports from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers' Mobile District Office concerning the deadly deep hole offshore from Buccaneer State Park.

A Corps official Tuesday said, although the U.S. Government and Hancock County have been named as defendants in almost $8 million in liable suits resulting from eight of 25 drownings in the treacherous underwater cavity, the litigation has not effected the Army agency's response to the problem.

Les Currie, executive assistant to the district engineer, stated, "We're at business as usual."

"We have a request in from Mayor John Longo of Waveland (to fill the hole by building an artificial fishing reef) and we have indicated to the mayor we will work with him to obtain necessary permits," he explained.

"We have not made any recommendations. This is in litigation and our Office of Counsel is involved," Currie stated.

"We will work with the city in obtaining the necessary permits. Depending on the type of activity, permits would be needed from the Corps and various state and federal agencies," the executive assistant said.

Longo is now seeking professional advice from the Gulf Coast Research Laboratory in Ocean Springs regarding placement of an artificial oyster reef to enclose the hole.

The Corps' Mobile District Office Supervisors' president Tuesday said, "We haven't heard anything from the Corps, but we're working with Longo to see what can be done."

The board president said the supervisors' efforts are limited due to the damage suits.

Rep. J. P. Compretta of Bay St. Louis, the county's state legislator, also last week said he is waiting for advice from the Mississippi Bureau of Marine Resources in Long Beach.

Sen. Martin Smith of Poplarville, another legislator for the county, reported the State Department of Natural Resources is seeking a recommendation from the Corps and Gov. William Winter expressed concern in the matter.

"The governor would become involved as a motivating factor with regard to the Corps and funds would come through the Gulf Coast Congressional Delegation," Smith explained.

Rex Buffington, Sen. John Stennis' press secretary, recently said in Washington D.C. a requested Corps' report has not been received.

"We have a gentleman on our staff working on this," he added.

Nancy Knott, Sen. Thad Cochran's assistant press secretary, last week also reported from Washington D.C. that the Corps has not yet responded to their inquiry regarding the deep hole.

"James Loftin, a staff member, said that more than a week ago we sent an inquiry to the Corps, but we haven't gotten a response," she stated.

Bay Catholic principal resigns

By BRENT MACEY
Michael Ryan, principal of the Bay St. Louis Catholic School System, resigned Thursday night at a Bay Catholic School Board meeting.

Acting president of the board, Emile Hazeur, said the resignation came as a surprise.

Ryan has been employed by the Bay Catholic schools for nine years, beginning in 1972 when he was first employed as a sixth grade teacher at Our Lady of the Gulf Elementary School.

In 1973 Ryan was appointed to the position of assistant principal at Our Lady of the Gulf.

He was appointed principal of that school.

Just prior to the 1980-81 school year the Bay Catholic Elementary Schools and High School merged to become the Bay Catholic School System.

Hazeur said Ryan gave no reason for his resignation at the meeting.

"He told us he has enjoyed working for the school system and we accepted his resignation," Hazeur said.

Ryan said Friday, "I resigned in order to get into some other area of education."

He would not comment on what area of education he will be pursuing or what his plans are for the future.

Hazeur stated the board is considering several people to replace Ryan but is leaning toward hiring one person qualified for the job.

He would not state who the board is considering but added that person currently is not employed by the school system.

"I finalized by the end of this coming week."

Ryan said he would stay on through the remainder of the summer to work with the new principal so there will be a smooth transition.

Hazeur said the new principal will be able to resume full responsibility of the principal's position by the beginning of the 1981-82 school year.

State's witness testifies in ninth day of trial

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.
The State of Mississippi began its defense Thursday after more than eight days of testimony in a property dispute trial primarily involving the state and Cinque Bambini Partnership of Hancock County.

The partnership, located at Holly Bluff, is suing the state to establish ownership of some 600 acres of land outlined as wetland areas in a map prepared by the Mississippi Marine Resources Council in the early 1970's.

The map was designed to illustrate the mean high tide mark which may indicate state ownership lines.

A statewide interpretation of the public trust doctrine, derived from English common law, may also be determined through the court action.

This doctrine dictates that the state owns, in trust of the public, the sea along its shores and extending up rivers and bays to the mean high water mark.

An air conditioning failure in Hancock County's Bay St. Louis Courthouse prompted a move of the Chancery Court trial to Harrison County's Gulfport Courthouse.

Plaintiffs in the suit include Lydia and Carroll Allen, owners of one-half the mineral rights of the Bambini property; Harry Kellerher, a neighbor.

Bay foot patrolman keeps busy at night

By BRENT MACEY
It's Saturday June 20, around 1 a.m. on downtown Beach Boulevard in Bay St. Louis.

Bay Patrolman Chris Sand is walking his usual Thursday through Saturday evening beat from Delmont Street to Court Street in the heart of the city's night life.

The evening has been relatively quiet. Sand has told several people lingering outside the local barrooms to get back inside with their drinks.

Some heckling and backtalk have followed his requests but no serious problems have arisen and no arrests have been made.

Sand passes the corner of South Beach Boulevard and Main Street and approaches the Fire Place Lounge. From behind him he hears a loud bang, like a cannon being fired. The echo reverberates around the corner of Main and Beach Boulevard. The noise is startling contrast to the otherwise quiet evening.

Upon turning the corner Sand first sees a garbage can rocking back and forth on its side in the middle of Main Street.

Two males are walking down Main Street away from Sand. Boulevard. Sand is within 25 feet of them when one takes a long shot at him and throws it at the plate glass window of the Hancock Insurance Agency.

Sand quickens his pace in attempt to shorten the distance, and the same man who threw the shot turns to the plate glass window and smashes his fist through the glass.

"Halt, police officer," Sand yells, now 15 feet away.

Surprised by the yell, the two spin quickly to notice the police officer for the first time. Immediately they begin running toward a parking lot just off Main Street. The officer begins running also and grabs one man as he attempts to get into his automobile.

The second man escapes over a fence.

Two other police units are called to the scene.

Hancock General is notified to contact the sheriff's department dispatcher if anyone comes to the hospital to receive assistance for a cut arm or shoulder.

Returning to the scene of the destruction Sand notices the owner of a FOOT PATROLMAN—Page 2A

Hospital administrator optimistic on survey

Hancock General Hospital Administrator Phil Langston said a survey team from the Joint Commission for Accreditation of Hospitals visited the local facility Tuesday.

Langston stated that although official results from the survey will not be made known for about 90 days, the reaction of the survey team was one of high praise for the improvement in the quality of care being provided in the local facility.

The survey team, composed of a physician, a registered professional nurse, a hospital administrator and a medical technologist, spent the entire day Tuesday reviewing the documentation and quality of care provided by Hancock General.

Although the survey team did have recommendations which would help the hospital in accomplishing its mission, they stated that past deficiencies had been corrected and that there were no major downgrading deficiencies.

The JCAH survey is a voluntary survey that sets the highest standards for hospital care in the United States.

The local hospital in February of 1980, successfully passed the U.S. Department of Health and Human Service survey.

School where he earned his master's degree in air-ocean environment.

Captain Bassett later served on an anti-submarine warfare staff aboard the aircraft carriers Randolph and Essex.

He served two tours of duty at the Fleet Weather Central, Norfolk, first as oceanographer and later as executive officer.

In 1972, he was ordered to the staff of the Oceanographer of the Navy in Washington where he was involved in planning and executing the relocation of the Navy's oceanography program to the Gulf Coast.

For his efforts in this endeavor he was awarded the Navy Commendation Medal. Captain and Mrs. Bassett and their two sons reside in Long Beach.

Captain McDonnell, a Diamondhead resident, is retiring from active service ending a career which began when he entered the Naval Academy in 1952.

Captain Palmer has been named director, Defense Mapping Agency, Hydrographic Center in Washington, D.C.

press secretary, also stated a requested Corps' report has not been received.

"As soon as we receive a response we will determine what is the best solution," he said.

A spokesman in Winter's office in Jackson also recently stated a requested Corps report has not been received.

The hole, located about 1,500 feet offshore from the park and Gulfside Assembly Center in Waveland, is a crater-like cavity 500 feet by 800 feet in size which was apparently created in a 1966 Corps' dredging project forming a sand beach from Ballentine Street in Bay St. Louis to Bayou Cadet.

The sand berm was designed by the Corps to prevent Beach Boulevard from eroding due to storm wave action.

A quicksand mud bottom, ranging from one to 20 feet in depth, was added to the hole in 1979 when spoils from a nearby Bayou Cadet dredging operation were dumped in an attempt to fill the cavity.

Warning signs have also been placed on the beach by the City of Waveland, and the County Civil Defense installed markers offshore around the deadly hole itself.

Department outlines water contamination possibilities

Farmers and others who fail to follow water safety rules could endanger everybody who shares their drinking water supply, warn public health officials.

Joe Brown, chief of the Mississippi State Board of Health environmental health bureau, said improper use of water supply connectors could result in pollution or contamination of an entire drinking water supply.

"A familiar sequence of events occurs when a planter fills his herbicide or pesticide tank," Brown explained. "He pours the concentrate into the tank and, to dilute with the proper amount of water, hangs a garden hose connected to the water supply into the tank."

If the system loses pressure anywhere along the line — because of heavy use, repairs, breaks in the main line, or for other reasons — the tank contents can back-siphon into the drinking water supply."

The effect is similar, he said, to siphoning gasoline from a vehicle's tank into another container.

"Don't ever hang a hose over into a tank, swimming pool, or other source with chemicals," Brown cautioned. "Always leave an air gap, a physical separation of the drinking water from the water that should not be consumed."

The distance between the water supply pipe or hose and the container rim should be twice the diameter of the pipe or hose from the supply but never less than an inch.

Brown said two potentially hazardous incidences involving a farmer's water supply, garden hose, and chemicals container have occurred within the past month.

"Fortunately, prompt recognition and action eliminated the danger," he said. "In one case, the polluted water back-siphoned into a water supply that served a large local restaurant. The restaurant owner voluntarily closed and remained closed until the water system could be thoroughly flushed so that none of his customers could be endangered."

"We can't always count on quick and accurate response, though," he said. "We must take the necessary preventive measures to avoid any possible danger to our drinking water supply."

Assistance in safe use of water supply connectors is available from the State Board of Health, Bureau of Environmental Health, P. O. Box 1700, Jackson, MS 39205, telephone 601-354-6616.

red volkswagon viewing a smashed windshield. Together they connect that damage with the thrown garbage can.

At 2 a.m. the sheriff's department receives the expected call. The second man has appeared at the hospital with serious cuts on his arm.

Both are charged with malicious mischief. In court one pleads guilty to both the damaged windshield and the plate glass window. He is fined $500 and ordered to pay for the damage.

This incident is one of several in which some 13 people have been arrested in the last two months on Beach Boulevard.

Sand refers to the area as a 'miniature Bourbon Street.'

He feels his efforts, through the Bay St. Louis Police Department have helped deter crime in the area.

Sand said the car vandalism has been halted almost entirely.

"Other types of vandalism have remained the same. But now we are at least catching most of the offenders," he said.

The foot patrolman began patrolling Beach Boulevard May 15 of this year following a joint decision by Chief Douglas Williams and Bay St. Louis Mayor Larry Bennett.

Almost all the arrests have involved adults. Sand said their ages ranged between 18 and 25. One juvenile has also been apprehended.

We have gotten convictions in every case," Sand said.

The incident of the garbage can is about average in the types of problems faced by the downtown foot patrolman.

An incident at Dan B's, a local lounge, is perhaps the worst encountered since the officer started patrolling the area.

That incident occurs some 12 or 13 young men from the Lakeshore, Clermont Harbor area 'c' a party going on in the game room B's. Sand said.

"One of ones who crashed the party wanted to listen to a country western station on the radio and turned the channel. Another boy already at the party changed the station back. The guy who crashed the party hit him," Sand said.

The officer said a brawl then broke out involving a couple dozen people. During the fight several invited party members were injured. Two of those people were hospitalized, Sand said.

Sand said one was partially paralyzed for two weeks.

The officer, who saw people running from Dan B's across the street to the Municipal Parking Lot after the fight, managed to stop the commotion and get names of six people who witnesses said caused most of the damage.

"I was further down the street when the fight occurred and never saw the fight," Sand said. I couldn't arrest anyone for that reason," he added.

Owners of Dan B's filed an affidavit against those six people.

Punishment for each varied and ranged from a $500 fine to a suspended six month jail sentence, probation for one year and a stipulation not to visit the downtown area for one year.

Business owners in the area agree that the foot patrolman is a good idea. Owners of Dan B's, The Pin Ball Palace, and Rather Southern, all stated they felt there should be more foot patrolmen in the area at night.

Kenny Murphy, part owner of Dan B's, said, "I think the foot patrolman is a good idea, but I think there should be more of them."

Lamar and Collette Ladner, owners of the Pinball Palace agreed and stated they felt there should be at least two foot patrolmen, one on each end of Sand's beat.

Collette Ladner added, "He (Sand) always seems to be too late."

She related an incident several weeks ago when a 'very drunk' person smashed his head through Mauffray's Hardware Store Window. She stated she had called police earlier that evening when she saw the young man on the street harassing people, but the police didn't respond to the call until 'it was too late.'

Lamar Ladner said he felt the officer was too far away to offer any protection during most of the night.

"I thought we would feel safer when we first heard there was going to be a foot patrolman, but I don't feel that way now," he said. "He always seems to be on the other end of the street when you need him," he said.

Barbara Scott, part owner of rather southern, stated she felt foot patrolmen were a necessity if the community wants to grow.

"It would make any investor feel more secure if the area was being patrolled," she stated.

other sector.
The major source of transfer payments is retirement and social security compensation. Transfer payments also includes public assistance such as welfare and unemployment.

But by 1979, manufacturing had become the leading source of income in 35 counties, while another 32 showed transfer payments as their top source. Seven of Mississippi's counties were dominated by government payrolls, and six by farm income.

Wholesale and retail trade, and construction were the leading income sources in Hinds and Claiborne counties, respectively.

The manufacturing sector was particularly strong in the northeast portion of the state, traditionally an industrial area. The Delta counties, once dominated by farming, are now primarily dependent on transfer payments income.

The southwestern counties of Mississippi are also strongly influenced by transfer payments, including Pearl River and George Counties.

Government is also the principal source of income in Harrison County when the 1979 per capita income was $8,532.

Low income a result of poor education, Council believes

Mississippi continues to occupy the unenviable position of last place in per capita income in the United States and, by all measurements, is slipping further behind the 49th state, Arkansas, according to the Mississippi Economic Council, organization of state chambers of commerce.

Mississippi, a pioneer in industrial development efforts, has failed to pioneer in one of the most important aspects of luring industrial concerns to the state—a quality education system.

According to reports from the Governor's office, the nation's industrial leadership is well aware of the positive aspects of locating in the state—favorable tax rates, a right-to-work law, and incentives to industry—but one of the first questions they ask concerns the state's public education system.

They want to know the capacity of the state to provide skilled, trained people and the state's capacity to provide schools adequate for the children of their employees.

In 1979, Mississippi ranked 22nd in the nation in local and state revenues for public schools as a percentage of personal income and ranked 48th in the nation in expenditures per pupil. And, some 17,000 students are dropping out of public elementary and secondary schools each year.

The Mississippi Economic Council, long an advocate of an effective, quality public education program, believes that there are five steps of paramount importance which must be taken to upgrade the state's education system. They are:

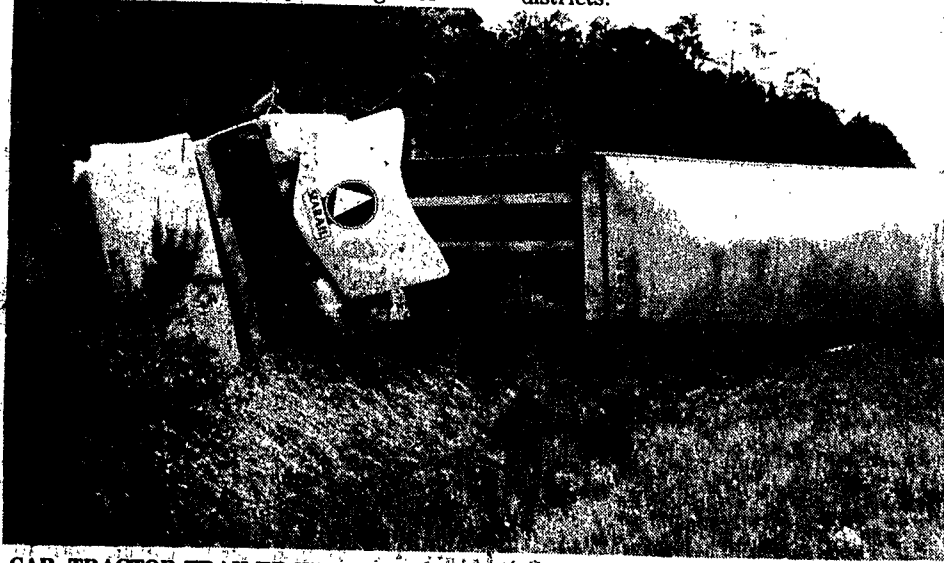

—Replace the current ex officio State Board of Education with an expanded lay board to establish an effective, policy-making body for the state's education program.

CAR, TRACTOR-TRAILER WRECK—The 18 wheel tractor-trailer above, driven by Steve J. Murphy of New Orleans en route from Mobile to New Orleans Friday, crashed into this abandoned car, below, on the west lane of I-10 just past the Jordan River Bridge. Mississippi Highway Patrolman David J. Kenny said Murphy admitted to falling asleep at the wheel on top of the bridge. The officer said the tractor-trailer started swerving and forcing other vehicles off the road before colliding with the 1975 Buick LaSabre abandoned and parked some quarter mile past the bridge. The tractor-trailer turned over on its side and slid some 200 feet down the embankment off the highway after knocking the automobile some 200 feet off the road into nearby bushes. Murphy was transported by Mobile Medic to Hancock General Hospital where he received stitches to cuts on his head. John Pernicaro's Wrecking Service from Bay St. Louis was enroute to remove the abandoned car when the accident happened. The Hancock Sheriff's Department, Diamondhead Rescue, and Mississippi Highway Patrol responded to the accident. Murphy, employed by Sea Land Trucking Company, was hauling some 40,000 pounds of recycled paper. (Staff photo by Brent Macey) press secretary, also stated a requested Corps' report has not been received.

"As soon as we receive a response we will determine what is the best solution," he said.

A spokesman in Winter's office in Jackson also recently stated a requested Corps report has not been received.

The hole, located about 1,500 feet offshore from the park and Gulfside Assembly Center in Waveland, is a crater-like cavity 500 feet by 800 feet in size which was apparently created in a 1966 Corps' dredging project forming a sand beach from Ballentine Street in Bay St. Louis to Bayou Cadet.

The sand berm was designed by the Corps to prevent Beach Boulevard from eroding due to storm wave action.

A quicksand mud bottom, ranging from one to 20 feet in depth, was added to the hole in 1979 when spoils from a nearby Bayou Cadet dredging operation were dumped in an attempt to fill the cavity.

Warning signs have also been placed on the beach by the City of Waveland, and the County Civil Defense installed markers offshore around the deadly hole itself.

Department outlines water contamination possibilities

Farmers and others who fail to follow water safety rules could endanger everybody who shares their drinking water supply, warn public health officials.

Joe Brown, chief of the Mississippi State Board of Health environmental health bureau, said improper use of water supply connectors could result in pollution or contamination of an entire drinking water supply.

"A familiar sequence of events occurs when a planter fills his herbicide or pesticide tank," Brown explained. "He pours the concentrate into the tank and, to dilute with the proper amount of water, hangs a garden hose connected to the water supply into the tank."

If the system loses pressure anywhere along the line — because of heavy use, repairs, breaks in the main line, or for other reasons — the tank contents can back-siphon into the drinking water supply. The effect is similar, he said, to siphoning gasoline from a vehicle's tank into another container.

"Don't ever hang a hose over into a tank, swimming pool, or other source with chemicals," Brown cautioned. "Always leave an air gap, a physical separation of the drinking water from the water that should not be consumed."

The distance between the water supply pipe or hose and the container rim should be twice the diameter of the pipe or hose from the supply but never less than an inch. Brown said two potentially hazardous incidences involving a farmer's water supply, garden hose, and chemicals container have occurred within the past month.

"Fortunately, prompt recognition and action eliminated the danger," he said. "In one case, the polluted water back-siphoned into a water supply that served a large local restaurant. The restaurant owner voluntarily closed and remained closed until the water system could be thoroughly flushed so that none of his customers could be endangered."

"We can't always count on quick and accurate response, though," he said. "We must take the necessary preventive measures to avoid any possible danger to our drinking water supply."

Assistance in safe use of water supply connectors is available from the State Board of Health, Bureau of Environmental Health, P. O. Box 1700, Jackson, MS 39205, telephone 601-354-6816.

red volkswagon viewing a smashed windshield. Together they connect that damage with the thrown garbage can.

At 2 a.m. the sheriff's department receives the expected call. The second man has appeared at the hospital with serious cuts on his arm.

Both are charged with malicious mischief. In court one pleads guilty to both the damaged windshield and the plate glass window. He is fined $500 and ordered to pay for the damage.

This incident is one of several in which some 13 people have been arrested in the last two months on Beach Boulevard.

Sand refers to the area as a "miniature Bourbon Street."

He feels his efforts through the Bay St. Louis Police Department have helped deter crime in the area.

Sand said the car vandalism has been halted almost entirely.

"Other types of vandalism have remained the same. But now we are at least catching most of the offenders," he said.

The foot patrolman began patrolling Beach Boulevard May 15 of this year following a joint decision by Chief Douglas Williams and Bay St. Louis Mayor Larry Bennett.

Almost all the arrests have involved adults. Sand said their ages ranged between 18 and 25. One juvenile has also been apprehended.

We have gotten convictions in every case," Sand said.

The incident of the garbage can is about average in the types of problems faced by the downtown foot patrolman.

An incident at Dan B's, a local lounge, is perhaps the worst encountered since the officer started patrolling the area.

That incident occurs some 12 or 13 young men from the Lakeshore, Clermont Harbor area 'c' a party going on in the game room B's, Sand said.

"One of ones who crashed the party wanted to listen to a country western station on the radio and turned the channel. Another boy already at the party changed the station back. The guy who crashed the party hit him," Sand said.

The officer said a brawl then broke out involving a couple dozen people. During the fight several invited party members were injured. Two of those people were hospitalized, Sand said.

Sand said one was partially paralyzed for two weeks.

The officer, who saw people running from Dan B's across the street to the Municipal Parking Lot after the fight, managed to stop the commotion and get names of six people who witnesses said caused most of the damage.

"I was further down the street when the fight occurred and never saw the fight," Sand said. "I couldn't arrest anyone for that reason," he added.

Owners of Dan B's filed affidavit against those six people.

Punishment for each varied and ranged from a $500 fine to a suspended six month jail sentence, probation for one year and a stipulation not to visit the downtown area for one year.

Business owners in the area agree that the foot patrolman is a good idea.

Owners of Dan B's, The Pin Ball Palace, and Rather Southern, all stated they felt there should be more foot patrolmen in the area at night.

Kenny Murphy, part owner of Dan B's, said, "I think the foot patrolman is a good idea, but I think there should be more of them."

Lamar and Collette Ladner, owners of the Pinball Palace agreed and stated they felt there should be at least two foot patrolmen, one on each end of Sand's beat.

Collette Ladner added, "He (Sand) always seems to be too late."

She related an incident several weeks ago when a "very drunk" person smashed his head through Mauffray's Hardware Store Window. She stated she had called police earlier that evening when she saw the young man on the street harassing people, but the police didn't respond to the call until "it was too late."

Lamar Ladner said he felt the officer was too far away to offer any protection during most of the night.

"I thought we would feel safer when we first heard there was going to be a foot patrolman, but I don't feel that way now," he said. "He always seems to be on the other end of the street when you need him," he said.

Barbara Scott, part owner of rather southern, stated she felt foot patrolmen were a "necessity" if the community wants to grow.

"It would make any investor feel more secure if the area was being patrolled," she stated.

other sector.

The major source of transfer payments is retirement and social security compensation. Transfer payments also includes public assistance such as welfare and unemployment.

But by 1979, manufacturing had become the leading source of income in 35 counties, while another 32 showed transfer payments as their top source.

Seven of Mississippi's counties were dominated by government payrolls, and six by farm income.

Wholesale and retail trade and construction were the leading income sources in Hinds and Claiborne counties, respectively.

The manufacturing sector was particularly strong in the northeast portion of the state, traditionally an industrial area. The Delta counties, once dominated by farming, are now primarily dependent on transfer payments income.

The southwestern counties of Mississippi are also strongly influenced by transfer payments, including Pearl River and George Counties.

Government is also the principal source of income in Harrison County when the 1979 per capita income was $6,532.

Low income a result of poor education, Council believes

Mississippi continues to occupy the unenviable position of last place in per capita income in the United States and, by all measurements, is slipping further behind the 49th state, Arkansas, according to the Mississippi Economic Council, organization of state chambers of commerce.

Mississippi, a pioneer in industrial development efforts, has failed to pioneer in one of the most important aspects of luring industrial concerns to the state—a quality education system.

According to reports from the Governor's office, the nation's industrial leadership is well aware of the positive aspects of locating in the state—favorable tax rates, a right-to-work law, and incentives to industry—but one of the first questions they ask concerns the state's public education system.

They want to know the capacity of the state to provide skilled, trained people and the state's capacity to provide schools adequate for the children of their employees.

In 1979, Mississippi ranked 22nd in the nation in local and state revenues for public schools as a percentage of personal income and ranked 48th in the nation in expenditures per pupil. And, some 17,000 students are dropping out of public elementary and secondary schools each year.

The Mississippi Economic Council, long an advocate of an effective, quality public education program, believes that there are five steps of paramount importance which must be taken to upgrade the state's education system.

They are:

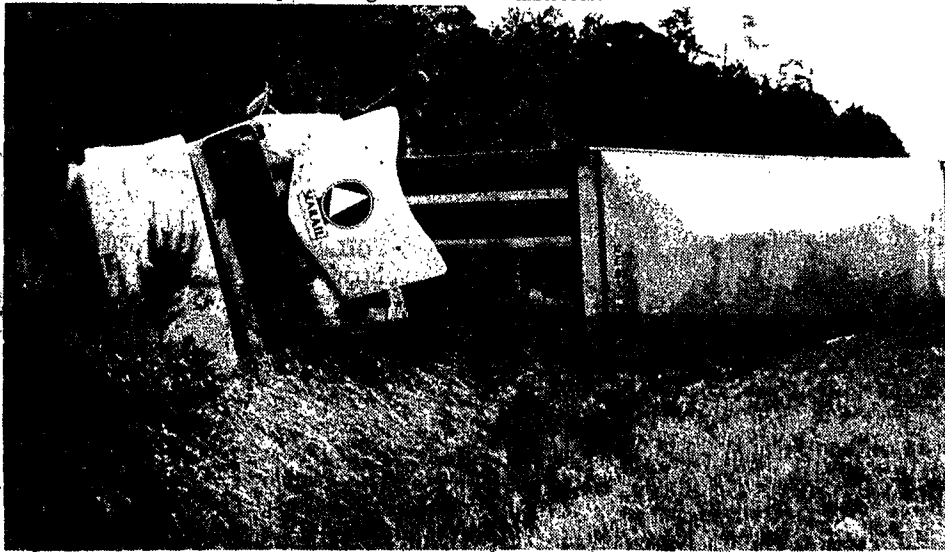

—Replace the current ex officio State Board of Education with an expanded lay board to establish an effective, policy-making body for the state's education program.

—Enact a public kindergarten program and include the program in the state's Minimum Education Program.

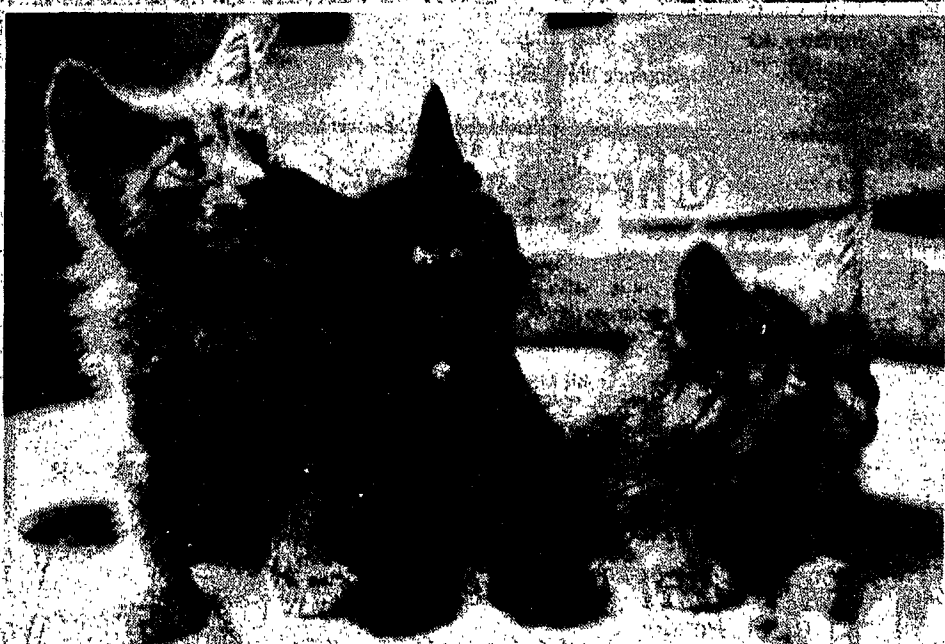

—Strengthen the state's compulsory school attendance law.

—Provide fiscal independence for all school districts.

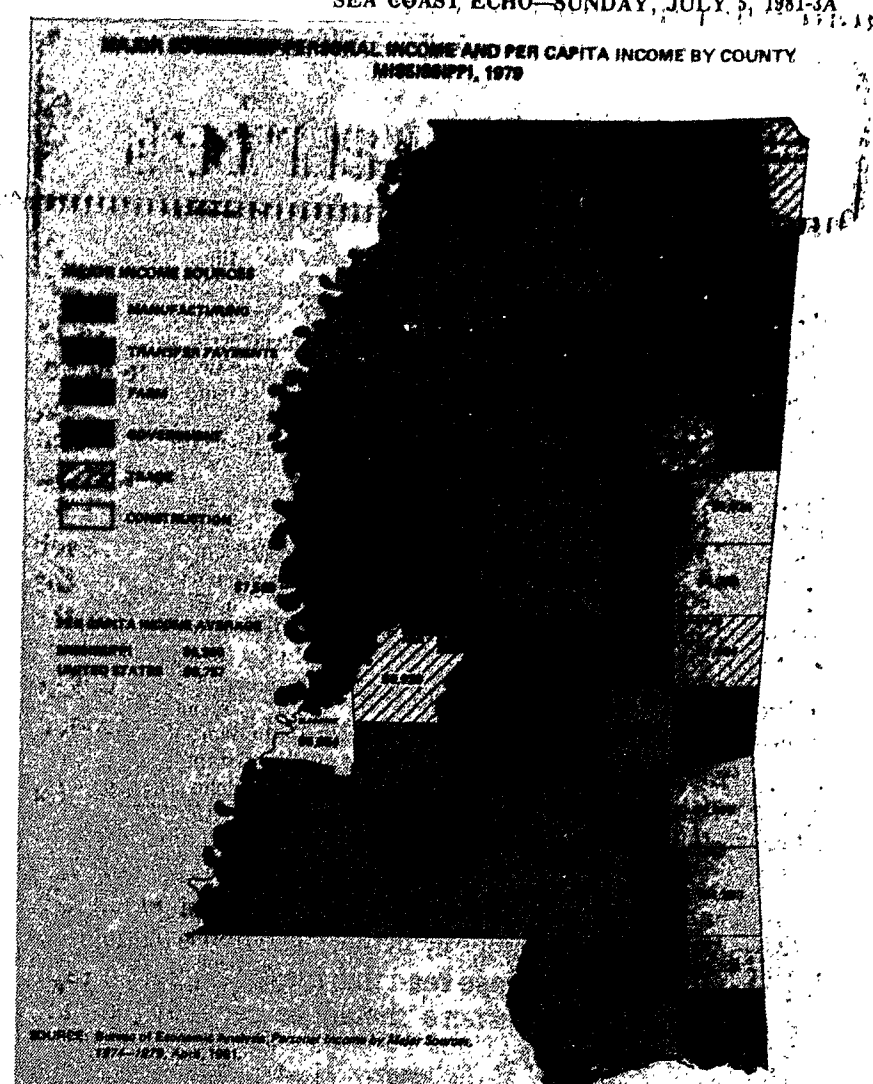

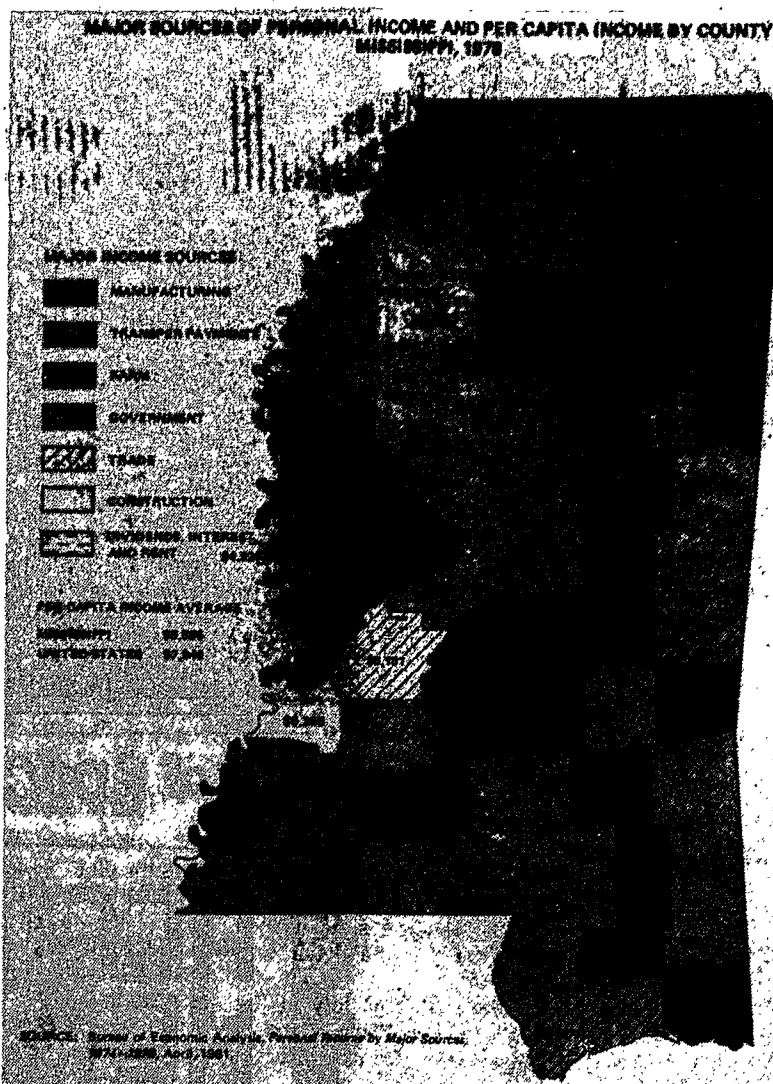

—Appoint local school superintendents, removing professional school superintendents from the election process and assuring strong professional leadership within the local districts.

There are free tennis classes available for the youngsters of the area and not too many are taking advantage of them, according to Brother Pascal, SC, one of the instructors.

The program is part of the Bay St. Louis Parks and Playgrounds activities and are held at the Bay High and St. Stanislaus Tennis courts.

Young boys and girls ages 11-16 can receive free lessons each Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 8-10 a.m. at the Stanislaus courts. Brother Pascal and Renne Cabel are the instructors.

Those ten and under can receive free instructions at the Bay High tennis courts on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday from 8-10 a.m. where Ann Johnson is the instructor.

We think it is good that these opportunities are available for the youth and hope more will take advantage of them.

There is a very important message to users of electricity from Mississippi Power Company in this issue of the Echo.

We urge all citizens to please read this message as it pertains to the refunds which customers should be receiving around December if they qualify.

We hope you had a wonderful July 4th and urge all of those still celebrating to leave the driving to someone else.

We have noted a sharp increase in traffic on our streets and highways, so please try and drive carefully especially along the waterfront.

This turned out to be a mixed up holiday weekend with some people having Friday off and others having Monday off, oh! you lucky folks.

We hope you remember those of us who have to work on the holidays especially the doctors, nurses, hospital staff, police, firemen and we could mention others.

We hope you all have a good time.

I have thought about advertising some lately, but the rates charged by the local newspaper seem to be too high. A New Car Dealer.

Dear ANCD: I have the same complaint about new car prices, but you can probably explain why cars that to me seem to cost so much, really don't.

So, I will ask you this. What are you basing your comparisons on that lead you to this conclusion?

What are your alternatives? Let's look at a few.

Direct selling is good. But can an outside salesman produce enough results by making cold calls to justify his salary. Maybe, but his rate of success will be much higher if the prospects he calls on have been presold by advertising. It will be even higher if he is calling on prospects who have made some sort of positive response to an advertisement.

Direct mail is good, also. But it is also expensive, compared to almost any other kind of promotion. Not only is postage high, but the cost of printing a respectable mailing piece is quite expensive, and requires a lot of knowhow.

Other media will not prove to be much less expensive in most markets. I think you will find radio to be less than others, but tv production costs usually make for an expensive promotion. In both instances quality of production will bear heavily on results produced.

Another solution would be a decision not to advertise at all, but as discussed recently this would prove to be even more expensive than any other alternative.

What you need to do is look at the cost per reader of advertising in the local newspaper. Compare it with the cost of sending a postal card, or sending a salesman to see that many people.

Consider that every reader of the local newspaper is either a prospect or has some influence on the purchase of new automobiles.

So quit just thinking about advertising and give your local newspaper a call.

You may find there are more prospects in the local market than you thought. In one newspaper we see quite often a new car dealer is running a photo ad featuring every one who buys a new car from him. His strategy must be working for he is running more and more ads every week.

'MARKETING POLLUTION' MAY BE A SOLUTION

By EDWIN FEULNER

Every neophyte Congressman in the 1970s quickly learned, if he hadn't learned it long before reaching Washington, that "the environment" was about as sacrosanct a cause as motherhood or apple pie.

One simply didn't go around reminding people that a clean environment came with a price tag or that snail darters were created a little lower than the angels.

Fortunately, the doomsday environmentalists who set out to scrub the universe clean of every last trace of human habitation have lowered their voices a bit the past couple years.

The Reagan Administration's announced intention to overhaul the 1970 Clean Air Act, which at one time would have been "decided" as a "move" tantamount to repealing the Magna Carta, has received thoughtful attention from environmental analysts.

An innovative proposal to make the Clean Air Act more workable, without sacrificing the environment, is set forth in a recent issue of HARPER'S Magazine by environmentalist William Tucker.

In "Marketing Pollution," Tucker advocates a "marketable rights" system originally proposed by Senator William Proxmire (D-Wisconsin) in the 1960s.

Under this system, each state would determine how much of a given air pollutant it was willing to allow in a given "airshed."

Then it would simply sell the rights to generate this pollution on an open market. (We can't pretend that an industrialized society can survive without creating pollution in the process.)

Tucker explains that industries would have to compete against each other for the right to create this pollution, inevitably bidding up these rights-to-pollute to their marginal level (i.e., the price at which it is cheaper for every individual to clean up his remaining emissions rather than pay more for the right to pollute).

The task of cleaning up the total pollution for the entire airshed would be automatically distributed among the polluters in the most economical way.

"The beauty of this system is that all the bureaucrats in the federal and state agencies who are spending countless thousands of hours deciding who should clean up what, when, and where could simply pack their bags and go home," Tucker says.

"All the decisions would be made where they belong — by the people who are going to bear the costs of deciding how to clean up."

Tucker points to one extremely attractive aspect of the marketable rights system: the greater involvement of the public in a process which graphically shows them the price of the improvements they are requesting.

Currently, when people want cleaner air, the standard practice is to lobby the legislators, start a mailing campaign, or organize a mass movement.

Politicians and bureaucrats are pressured into tightening up the emissions standards, and everyone goes home happy. No one takes the least thought as to what it is all going to cost, even though he will eventually pay the bill in higher consumer prices.

"But with the marketable rights system, the possibility exists that the public, either through municipal bodies or environmental groups, can organize itself to buy back some of the rights to pollute and 'retire' them, thus eliminating more pollution from the atmosphere.

This way, the public will be able to improve the air but will understand exactly how much it is costing."

For all its novelty, Tucker's plan makes "good common sense, and perhaps provides a common ground where both the Sierra Club and the Chamber of Commerce can come together in the war against air pollution.

MISSISSIPPI TREASURY REPORT

Bill Cole, State Treasurer

P.O. Box 138-Jackson, Mississippi 39201 AC 601/354-7117

State Treasurer Bill Cole this week released a special report announcing the record receipt of over $30 million in interest income from the investment of state funds for fiscal year 1981 ending June 30, 1981.

Income to the general fund from investment totaled $30,050,000, which represents an increase of over $7 million above 1980's total of $22,892,189 and some $3.5 million above estimates for this year.

Cole stated that the income is a result of daily investments by the State Treasurer's Office of state funds on a short term basis in certificates of deposit and repurchase agreements.

"Our efforts have been devoted to maximizing our investments and taking advantage of high interest rates for the benefit of the taxpayer. In July 1980, the State was receiving 6.82 percent on its funds. During the month of June 1981 our rates have ranged from a low of 13.18 percent to a high of 16.76 percent," Cole said.

The State Treasurer also reported that the State has significantly reduced the use of non-interest bearing accounts through the utilization of repurchase agreements as an investment tool.

"These efforts have resulted in maintaining between 98 to 99 percent of state funds in interest bearing investments. This is a marked improvement over years past and is, in fact, higher than the current average of 94 to 96 percent by most of our sister states."

Currently the State Treasurer's Office is maintaining an investment of general funds in the amount of $311,686,000 in 263 financial institutions throughout Mississippi.

"With the distribution of these funds throughout Mississippi, the State is not only receiving interest income, but also is making available capital that can provide an economic stimulus to every area of the State."

"We are indeed proud of the contribution made by this program not only to the income of the State but equally for what it means to the local economy. It is our hope that we can continue to make improvements where the program can make an even greater contribution."

Heat illness is summer health risk

With the return of hot summer days and vigorous outdoor activity, once again comes the danger of sunstroke or heat exhaustion.

Sunstroke, or heatstroke, is a life-threatening emergency, says the American Medical Association's Handbook of First Aid and Emergency Care.

It is a disturbance in the body's heat-regulating system caused by extremely high body temperature due to exposure to heat.

The body temperature can be 100 degrees or higher. The skin is red, hot and dry, and there is no sweating. Pulse is rapid and strong. The sufferer may be confused, or lose consciousness.

If the body temperature is 105 or higher, undress the victim and put him into a tub of cold water (not ice). If no tub is near, spray the victim with a hose, or sponge the bare skin with cool water or rubbing alcohol, or apply cold packs.

Continue until temperature drops to 101 or 102, checking temperature constantly to avoid overchilling.

Get medical help promptly. Do not give alcoholic beverages, or stimulants such as coffee or tea.

Heat exhaustion can occur after prolonged exposure to high temperature and high humidity.

This can occur indoors as well as out. Body temperature may be normal or only slightly elevated, the skin is pale and clammy, there is heavy sweating.

The victim is tired and weak, dizzy, and has a headache, and may be nauseated and have stomach cramps.

He may faint.

Move the victim into the shade or a cooler area. Have him lie down and raise the feet 8 to 12 inches. Loosen clothing. Place cool wet cloths on forehead and body.

Use an electric fan, or, if possible get the victim into an air-conditioned room. If the victim is not vomiting, give clear juice or sips of cool salt water (1 teaspoon of salt per glass).

Give half a glass of liquid every 15 minutes for one hour. Stop fluids if vomiting starts. Science News Editor AMA

Lions Eye

Bank reports successful transplants

Over 100 sight-restoring corneal transplants during the past fiscal year were reported by Judy C. Kinsey, executive administrator of the Mississippi Lions Eye Bank.

"This means," explains Kinsey, "that over 100 fellow Mississippians who couldn't see at this time last year, are now able to, because of the humanitarian concern of people who were eye donors to the Mississippi Lions Eye Bank."

Corneal transplants, Kinsey said, are now quite commonplace and have become increasingly successful in restoring vision to those whose blindness is the result of damaged or diseased corneas.

A critical factor in restoring sight to those so afflicted, she said, is the availability of human eye tissue for the surgery.

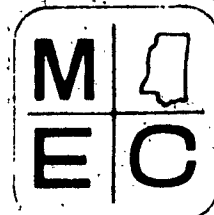

Ms. Kinsey pointed out that the steadily increasing success of corneal transplant surgery has prompted a great increase in the need for human eye tissue for transplant purposes.

The cornea is the clear, lens-like portion of the eye which look much like the crystal on a watch.

Because only the cornea is used in the transplant, the degree of near or far-sightedness of the donor is not important, she emphasized.

Those willing to pledge their eyes to the MS Lions Eye Bank are urged to do so by contacting the bank at (601) 987-5899, or contacting a member of any Lions Club in the state.

The Mississippi Lions Eye Bank is a member of the Eye Bank Association of America, and is operated under a non-profit status.

OILING THE MACHINERY
America's free enterprise system is the most unique economic system in the history of mankind and has provided Americans the highest standard of living known. But, the most important part of our complex but efficient system is perhaps the most misunderstood.

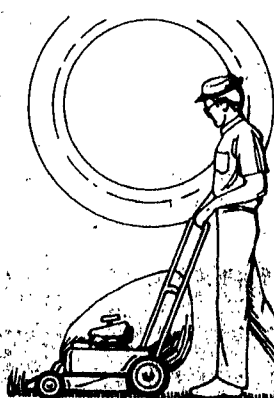

This all-too-important component is the "oil" that makes the "machinery" of free enterprise work.

It provided a factory in a riot-torn area and then helped it along until it was a $10-million a year business largely owned by its employees. It helped to remodel a home for troubled youngsters in one location and renovated a recreation center for school drop-outs in another.

It created a million new jobs in the United States in one year alone.

It pours millions into the arts each year, even more into education, and well over a billion dollars to charity.

And, it provides federal, state, and local governments billions in annual tax revenues.

Class of '48 plans picnic

The Bay High School graduation class of 1948 will hold a family-style picnic at Buccaneer Park Sunday, July 12 starting at 10 am. in Shelter No. 2. They invite all high school classes of that year, and their families, to join them.

"Please bring your own food and refreshments," a class spokesman said. The graduation class and their spouses, along with their teachers, will hold their class reunion of the previous night at the Waveland Civic Center. For further information, you may call Marie Parker Mauffray at 467-4680 or Myrtle Oliver Moran at 467-7600.

State Weather

Mississippi farmers can expect warmer and drier than usual weather in July, according to the National Weather Service outlook distributed by the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

Showers in the northern part of the state at the beginning of the month may be the best chance for rain for several days, say agrometeorologists at the Mid-South Farm Weather Service in Stoneville who prepare the forecasts. Normal rainfall patterns in July range of monthly rainfall amounts from fewer than four inches in the north to more than seven inches on the coast.

Below median rainfall, combined with high drying potentials, will require long hours of pumping to keep rice fields flooded and other crops growing, say weather experts. There should be plenty of open weather for insect and weed control and for haying, they add.

Higher than normal temperatures will bring the daily maximum temperatures into the mid 90s or higher much of the month. Lowest readings will average in the low to middle 70s. Cattlemen and poultrymen will need to be prepared to lessen heat stress on livestock and poultry. Ventilation equipment will be needed every day to augment the light, variable winds associated with hot July weather.

SPECTACULAR WEATHER—A funnel cloud 'which danced around for four or five minutes' over Port Blenville Industrial Park and Ansley Community in Southwestern Hancock County was photographed by Kent Seller of Lakeshore, owner of Kent and Sue's Quickstop and Laundrymat. Seller said the cloud, which remained stationary for some time, was witnessed by many in the area Thursday morning, June 25 when a line of severe thundershowers moved through this area. The funnel cloud reportedly did not touch down.

WHAT'S AHEAD

What will farming be like 20 years from now? Will the present trend of fewer farms continue into the year 2000? That's how the U.S. Department of Agriculture sees farming in the 21st century. USDA predicts, while the family farm concept will continue to dominate U.S. agriculture, the influence of small farms will give way to large farms with annual sales of more than $100,000.

The number of U.S. farms will drop 35 percent in the next 20 years, USDA predicts. If present trends continue, farms will drop from 2.5 million in 1980 to 1.8 million by the year 2000.

Fewer farms will mean larger acreages of remaining farms to supply world food needs. Average farm size will increase from about 400 acres in 1980 to nearly 600 acres by the year 2000, USDA says.

The change to larger farms probably will mean more farm corporations, more specialization in what farms produce and agricultural production concentrated among relatively few farms. Fewer young people will be able to afford to start farming because of high capital requirements.

USDA estimates that by the year 2000 one percent of the farms will produce 50 percent of all food. On the other end of the scale, 50 percent of the farms — the smaller ones — will produce less than one percent of the food.

USDA's projections don't predict what certainly will happen, nor necessarily what is desirable, in U.S. farming in coming years. But they do tell what is likely to happen if underlying factors in the U.S. farm sector continue as they have since the 1950's.

STOP WEEDS

Your key to controlling soybean weeds is timeliness and follow-up. The most critical period of the season is four to six weeks after emergence, when weeds are easier to control and haven't started to reduce yields.

Remove the first flush of weeds in this period and follow with additional treatments for weeds that escape or emerge later. Pick herbicides that fit your method of application, kind and size of weed, and size of soybean plants.

You don't want to overlook cultivation as an effective, economical way to remove weeds outside the drill area. Use herbicides to get weeds the cultivator can't reach. Many times, combining flat cultivation with directed sprays is the least expensive and most effective way to stop weeds.

LATE PLANTINGS

Soybeans planted through June 20 probably will experience only small, if any, yield reductions if they can get off to a quick start and make fast growth in the first month. This should be possible with the soil moisture we have.

Using narrower rows will help late plantings. They may not always be practical, but after June 20 I would consider using a grain drill. Most folks agree that after mid-June, medium to late maturing varieties are generally better than early varieties.

Irrigation also will help offset some of the effects of late plantings. Research in Arkansas has shown with narrow rows and irrigation, an early variety yielded as much later varieties when planted in July.

REPLANT SOYBEANS?

If you're like most farmers, you probably plant soybeans too thick. If you have a thinned stand are considering replanting, look at the uniformity of the remaining plants, present or absence of disease and other stress factors.

An average of four plants per row food, if uniform and healthy, is enough to keep in 40-inch rows. Half that many is acceptable in 20-inch rows. While drilled plantings need more plants to help shade weeds, two to three plants per square foot give 97,120 to 130,680 plants per acre, which is plenty.

STOP SICKLEPOD

Always spray sicklepod when the leaves are wide open. Spraying at night, late in the afternoon, early in the morning or during drought stress may give poor results because the leaves are closed or partly closed in these periods.

That leaves the middle of the day as the best time to spray sicklepod. Surprisingly, you'll find that cloudy weather may help control efforts during the day since it stimulates greater expansion of the leaves.

Pass Chamber opposes nuclear waste dumping

The Board of Directors of the Pass Christian Area Chamber of Commerce voted to oppose the United States Department of Energy's plan to develop a permanent high-level nuclear waste repository or dump in Mississippi, according to Chamber President Julian K. Byrne Jr.

The Chamber sent telegrams to Governor William Winter and to the Mississippi congressmen in Washington strongly urging them to use all possible efforts to prevent any preparation for or building of any nuclear waste dumps in Mississippi.

The chamber asks citizens to call or write Governor Winter at P. O. Box 139, Jackson, Ms. 39205 or telephone 354-7575 or their congressmen on this important issue.

BIG SQUASH—Brewster Mollere of Waveland holds 11 pound yellow squash he grew in his garden on Coleman Avenue. Mollere said the reason for the squash being so large may have been because it grew next to a watermelon. (Staff photo by Ellis Cuevas)

ART EXHIBIT—Vivian Neely of Bay St. Louis and Bay St. Louis Mayor Larry Bennett view a new art exhibit in city hall recently. The Hancock County Art Association picks a different local artist to display their paintings in city hall every month. Neely, who was chosen this month, said she has sketched all her life but has only been painting for less than one year under the direction of Carl Balderhoffer, volunteer teacher for the Redford Senior Volunteer Citizens. All the paintings are oil with the exception of one ink and one charcoal drawing included in the display. Many of the paintings on display have been sold. (Staff photo by Brent Macey) boring riverfront land owner; and Phillips Petroleum Co. of Houston, Tex., a company leasing a northern portion of the partnership's property.

OPONENTS CONFER—Lawyers discussing procedures Tuesday during an ongoing trial in Harrison County's Gulfport Courthouse involving Cincque Bambini Partnership of Hancock County against the State of Mississippi are, from left, Boyce Holleman of Gulfport, representing Saga Oil Co. of Houston, Tex., which has joined the state in the action; Ernest Taylor of

Jackson, a Bambini attorney; Joel Blass of Pass Christian, attorney for Phillips Petroleum Co. of Houston, which has joined Bambini in the trial; Mack Cameron of Jackson, assistant State Attorney General; and Charles E. Harper of Jackson, also representing Saga. (Staff photo by Wayne Ducomb Jr.)

Joining the state as defendants is Saga Petroleum Co. of Houston which holds mineral leases for some 600 acres from the state within the southern portion of the Bambini property claim.

The land in question is roughly 2,400 acres bounded on the north and east by Jourdan River, on the south by Bayou LaCroix and on the west by Hwy. 603. I-10 crosses the center of the land area east to west.

Bambini contends it owns the property claimed by the state based on its own professional studies, a "headlands" consideration in the public trust doctrine and property ownership documents.

Headlands claims of streams, lakes and bayous are based on ownership of land on one side of a waterway, separating an entire waterway.

THURSDAY TESTIMONIES THE NINTH DAY

Dr. Michael Smith, president of the Bay St. Louis engineering firm Advanced Developments, Inc., ended his testimony and was the final witness for the complainants.

ADI and Craben-Thompson Associates of Fort Lauderdale, Fla. conducted a property line study for Bambini.

Cpt. Wesley V. Hull, associate director of the National Oceanographic and Atmospheric Administration's National Ocean Survey office in Rockville, Md. testified as the state's first witness.

Under cross examination by Joel Blass of Pass Christian, an attorney representing Phillips, Smith explained 541.26 acres were leased to Saga within the Bambini property claim where 78 acres of waterways were charted on a U.S. Coast and Geodetic Survey map, and 513 acres outlined as wetlands and 174 water acres in the MMRC map.

Boyce Holleman of Gulfport, a Saga attorney, objected to Blass presenting additional evidence not offered at the outset of the trial and information pertaining to areas outside the Bambini property claim.

Chancellor William Stewart of Division One—Eighth Chancery Court District of Mississippi, advised Blass to limit questioning to the property area.

Blass stated, "This involves an arm of the state government. The impact, force and effect of that practice (mineral rights leasing) is involved in this lawsuit."

"The final policy involved in this practice surely seems material in this lawsuit because what the state has done here, it has done in other places as well. It spills over in part, but for the most part it involves the state," he explained.

"We're entitled to show what the state's policy is and show what the state is doing in interpreting the laws. This shows an intent of claim. The state leased 4.02 times as much land as water surface which was 541 acres of land in the Bambini tract," Blass stated.

"This practice reaches thousands of people and millions of dollars in property. It is necessary to show the full impact of this practice," he said.

"Every one of the Saga leases has been received in evidence. One lease for Shoreline Park property was put in as evidence by Mack Cameron, an assistant State Attorney General. How can it be relevant by the state and not by us..." Blass reported.

L. Arnold Pyle of Jackson, a Bambini attorney, joined in Blass' plea and stated, "We think it is absolutely clear the state is taking a liberty of acquiring property with due process of law."

Stewart overruled Holleman's objection.

Holleman argued further that the issues in the case are limited.

"The state and Saga claim land below the mean high water mark. The state hasn't presented its case and it will not claim acres it is not entitled to and this lawsuit will determine what will be leased," he explained.

"We're now being asked to run up and down the river in this lawsuit. It's a fundamental principle to see what is involved in the public trust doctrine. That's all the case is about," Holleman stated.

"Blass likes to involve these other areas, but he's not paying for this trial. I'm surprised the complainants are joining Phillips in this aspect," he said.

Blass replied, "Phillips is a defendant and we're not voluntarily here. This case has far reaching effects. The state has leased land that is dry land."

Stewart said evidence should be presented which is limited to the property in question, but added that leases overlapping into the Bambini claim would be allowed for trial examination.

Holleman objected to the court's ruling.

Under questioning by Ernest Taylor of Jackson, a Bambini attorney, Smith said he did not exclude "small streams" in a Bambini land survey because original land grant descriptions did not exclude these water bodies.

Smith noted that Bayou LaCroix, which was excluded in the recent land survey, was including in a land survey by Elihu Carver in 1930 which established the John J. Jourdan property grant now primarily claimed by Bambini.

Taylor then offered Carver's survey field notes of the John Jourdan and adjacent Noel Jourdan land patents as evidence.

Smith explained details of the notes and how that and other documents were utilized to establish property lines.

Holleman then introduced Hull as the defendants' first witness.

Hull explained his duties and Stewart recognized him as an expert witness.

The associate director said a cooperative agreement was finalized in 1977 with the state for a coastal mapping program. He reported the state paid for the project which also included gathering tidal data.

Hull noted the locations and functions of several tide measurement stations in Hancock County waters.

He said NOAA's "primary tide station" for the Gulf Coast area is located in Pensacola, Fla. and local tides reflect about a one-hour difference from that station.

When Pyle objected to information Hull testified he gathered in telephone conversations with other government offices, Stewart overruled the Bambini attorney and stated, "This is a classic example of how the government operates."

Hull then explained information on several tide charts introduced as evidence.

He reported "tidal datums are local phenomena" and a readjustment of this information should be completed in the mid-1980's.

The associate director reported that NOS conducted a tide information workshop in Rockville for Mississippi which included attorneys and experts involved in both sides of the case.

Hull said on March 30, 1981 he visited here to provide advice in mean high water mapping techniques to experts for the state and Bambini.

Holleman then introduced photographs which Hull explained depicted his inspection of Bayou Enciente, located in the Bambini property claim.

The associate director stated he found more than six feet of water depth in the upper reaches of the stream.

He testified a mean high water line can be surveyed, defined it as "the intersection of mean high water datum with a sloping shore" and NOS recognizes the line.

Pyle objected to Hull's report regarding the NOS tidal epoch, which records tides over a 19-year period.

Holleman noted Pyle introduced the 1960-1978 epoch as evidence, but the Bambini attorney stated, "We intend to show that NOS fiddled around for two years before they made a new tidal epoch in 1980."

Hull replied, "We had a lot more scientific information and we found the Gulf Coast had different tides."

In explaining the procedures in establishing the new epoch, Hull said mean high water is now .03 feet lower seaward.

"Whoever owns land landward has more property," he added.

McCaleb, Perry wed in candlelight ceremony

St. John's Catholic Church in Lakeshore formed the setting for the May 22 candlelight Nuptial Mass uniting Reba Ann Perry and John David McCaleb.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B.M. Perry Jr. of Lakeshore. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. J.T. McCaleb of Bay St. Louis.

Rev. Lambert Stack officiated at the 7:30 p.m. double ring ceremony. The sanctuary was decorated with standing baskets of spring flowers, palm greenery and lighted candelabra.

Nuptial music was provided by Mrs. Carol Mitchell of Lakeshore.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of deep candlelight schiffli and chantilly laces and English net featuring Victorian styling with ring collar of schiffli lace and sheer yoke outlined with soft ruffle of chantilly lace. The softly gathered lace skirt had an attached chapel length train. She wore a waltz length veil of illusion bordered in schiffli lace and held in place by a Juliet caplet.

She carried a cascade of mini-carnations, baby's breath and English ivy interspersed with satin ribbon.

Denise LaFontaine of Bay St. Louis was maid of honor.

Bridesmaids were Sheryl Bechtel of Bay St. Louis and Tina Peterson of Waveland.

Junior Bridesmaids were nieces of the groom, Aimee and Gretchen Arnold of Pearlinton, and Stephanie Jordan of Bay St. Louis.

The attendants were attired in formal gowns of silesta featuring V-Neckline, blouson styling and crystal pleated skirts, in pastel shades of pink, yellow and blue.

They carried lighted candle arrangements of silk flowers in colors to match each gown, with lace and ribbon streamers.

The junior attendants also wore dresses in pink, yellow and blue.

John Stiglet of Bay St. Louis served the groom as best man.

Groomsmen were Kevin McCaleb of Bay St. Louis, brother of the groom; and Ricky Geoffrey of Waveland.

Al Arnold of Pearlinton, brother-in-law of the groom, was usher.

Mark Perry of Lakeshore, brother of the bride, was ring bearer.

A reception followed the ceremony at American Legion Post No. 139 in Bay St. Louis.

The mother of the bride was attired in a formal gown of blue silesta with a matching lace coat and corsage of ivory rosebuds.

The groom's mother chose for the occasion an apricot empire styled gown with a chiffon capelet and a corsage of ivory silk roses.

Assisting at the reception were Michelle Peterson of Waveland, guest register; Mrs. Mary Lagarde of Bay St. Louis, cake and punch tables; and Shirley Corr of Waveland, cake table.

For traveling to Baton Rouge, La. the bride chose a two piece dress in maroon and white with white accessories. A silk daisy corsage completed her ensemble.

The couple will reside in Bay St. Louis.

Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. B.M. Perry Sr. of Anniston, Ala.; Mr. and Mrs. James St. Pierre of Slidell, La.; and Susan St. Pierre of Metairie, La.

Methodist ceremony unites Lewis, Van Peski

MR. AND MRS. JONATHAN LLOYD LEWIS

Anne Marie Van Peski and Jonathan Lloyd Lewis were joined in marriage during a double ring ceremony June 13, at United Methodist Church, with Rev. Willis Britt officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roberto Van Peski of Bay St. Louis. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Jonathan Lewis of Atlanta, Ga.

Nuptial music was provided by Mrs. Kathleen Asher.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a long sleeve formal gown of antique lace over bridal taffeta. The bodice featured Queen Anne neckline and appliques of venise lace with seed pearls. The ruffled skirt extended to a cathedral length train bordered in lace.

Her tiered veil of illusion was held in place by a caplet of matching venise lace edged with seed pearls.

She carried a pastel nosegay of tinted carnations, white daisies and baby's breath, with pale green satin streamers.

Michelle Renee Van Peski, sister of the bride, was maid of honor.

She wore an aqua crepe gown with full ruffled skirt. The bodice was fashioned by a high neckline with ecru overlay and aqua satin ribbon trim. Short puffed sleeves were offset by wide sleevebands with matching ecru overlay.

She carried a pastel nosegay of carnations and baby's breath silimar to the bride's bouquet.

Ken Farrell served as best man.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents.

The couple is residing in San Diego, Calif. where the groom is stationed with the U.S. Navy.

A champagne and cake reception followed the ceremony.

Finley hosts supper for Diamondhead GC

Members of the Diamondhead Garden Club and their husbands were guests at a covered dish supper at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Finley on Thursday evening, June 25.

Mrs. Finley has recently completed her third term as the club's president.

Attended by more than 60 members and their husbands, good food, fellowship and weather combined to make the event a memorable one.

After "feasting," Mrs. Finley thanked the members for coming, and for having been so supportive while she was president.

Holcomb Hector, vice-president of The Diamondhead Corporation and his wife were special guests. Mrs. Finley thanked him on behalf of the club members for his cooperation and interest in their activities.

Mrs. Finley has strived to further the aims of the Garden Clubs of Mississippi and the National Council of Garden Clubs by promoting the beautification of Diamondhead.

One of her endeavors included a series of landscape design sessions given by Mr. John Davis, Mississippi Area Horticulture Specialist. His lectures were followed up by "on-the-spot" visits to any club members home who wanted his suggestions on landscaping their grounds.

A similar course will be offered next year, and is open to the public.

Mrs. George Kollasch, newly elected president for the coming year, also thanked those who came to the supper and said she was looking forward to her term of office.

Thigpen reflects on meaning of Independence Day

JULY 4TH
FREEDOM is heaven's next best gift to that of life itself. On July 4th we celebrate the greatest event in all the history of our country. On July 4th, 1776 this country was declared free and independent.

Because those of us now living have lived only under freedom, and have not known anything but freedom, we are apt to forget, not realize and not appreciate the great blessings of liberty that we enjoy.

It is most fitting that once a year on July 4th, we set aside this day for remembrance and thanksgiving for the priceless liberties we enjoy.

The greatest of all human benefits, without which no other benefit can be truly enjoyed, is independence, liberty, freedom!

There are three essential things that make up what we call Americanism.

These three elements are unusual in world history and combine here in America to make this the greatest nation the world has ever seen. On these three things depend our existence as free people — now and in the future.

The first of these elements is Christianity. We believe in God, and we embrace the commandments, which, in themselves, would make for happy and satisfactory relationships among all people.

But there are those who do not follow out all Christian principles, and because of this and because of our strong desire to always be free of slavery to unscrupulous and power mad people like Hitler or -Mussolini, we have our United States Constitution and laws to protect us.

Under constitutional government, such as we have, we are guaranteed complete freedom. We have it possible for everyone to enjoy all the privileges that anyone enjoys.

In this country, all; rich and poor, big and little, enjoy the same protection under the law.

These two factors alone — Christianity and Constitutional Government — seem to provide all the elements of success, but there is a third thing to complete our system, which has been so successful — and that is free enterprise, which embraces the freedom to work when and where we choose, and have the right to invest our time, our efforts, and our money in developing any project in which we are interested.

In this great country we do what we want to do within the limits of reasonable laws, we develop our own ideas, our own goals and desires, and we are free to move in any direction we so desire.

In many countries of the world people do not have these priceless privileges.

On these three essential things — Christianity, Constitutional government, and free enterprise — hang all the rest of the things that go to make up our American way of life.

Destroy any one of these three things and you will eventually destroy this country.

Christianity is solidly established. Constitutional government, and free enterprise — hang all the rest of the things that go to make up our American way of life. Destroy any one of these three things and you will eventually destroy this country.

Christianity is solidly established. Constitutional government, or government by law, has been solidly established. But what is free enterprise? Free enterprise means the right, or freedom, of any person — you — or me — to do as he pleases, within the bounds of reasonable laws.

This system of free enterprise has built this country to where it is the greatest country in the history of the world, yet, today, we have things going on in this country that could crush this free enterprise system and put us in the same position as the people of so many other countries of the world who have lost their precious freedoms.

Up until a few years ago, there was no effort to amount to much, to change our free enterprise system, but when the hard times of the 1930's came along, the socialists and the communists began to shout to the world that our system of freedom was all wrong and that was why conditions had gotten bad, which, in my opinion is about like saying that a strong healthy young man, who had gotten a little lame in one leg should have that leg cut off — and then have the communist thinking people graft on artificial legs in its place and give him a pair of crutches.

An Important Message To Present And Former Customers Of Mississippi Power Company

YOU MAY BE ELIGIBLE FOR A REFUND CHECK IN DECEMBER

In mid-1975, Mississippi Power Company filed suit against Peabody Coal Company for failure to deliver coal contracted for shipment to its generating plant in Harrison County. The company initiated this legal action to protect its customers from unnecessary fuel cost increases. Between June 1975 and December 1980, customers paid higher fuel costs through the fuel adjustment because Mississippi Power Company had to buy coal at higher prices than those provided for under a long-term contract with Peabody Coal Company.

Mississippi Power Company and its coal supplier settled the dispute earlier this year. As a result of Mississippi Power Company's efforts, approximately $34 million will be returned to retail customers by check in a special mailing in December 1981.

Customers who received electricity from Mississippi Power Company between June 1975 and December 1980 are eligible for a refund based on kilowatt-hour usage during that five and one half year period.

Please don't confuse Mississippi Power Company with Mississippi Power & Light Company. The names are similar, but they are two different utilities. Mississippi Power Company, headquartered in Gulfport, serves customers in 23 southeast Mississippi counties.

No Action Is Required—You Automatically Will Receive A Refund Check— If All 3 Conditions Apply:

1. You received an electric bill for the month of December 1980, AND
2. You received service between June 1975—December 1980 and did not move during that period, AND
3. You have not moved since December 1980.

Return This Form If Either Of These Conditions Apply To You:

1. You moved anytime between June 1975—December 1980,
- OR
2. You have moved since December 1980.

This information will be used to verify service records and to obtain current mailing addresses of customers who have moved. If you can include a copy of a bill received at a previous address, it would be helpful.

Southern Federal
Liquid Assets Fund
Put Your Cash To Work On A Daily Basis
At A High Rate Of Interest.

HIGH YIELDS: YES
The Southern Federal Liquid Assets Fund pays more than twice the interest your cash reserves are now earning in a passbook savings or checking account. And this rate is fixed for up to 89 days from deposit, regardless of interest rate changes.

13%

$1,000 and over

EASY ACCESS: YES

Your cash earns interest on a daily basis. No penalty for early withdrawal. No early cancellation charge.

$1,000 Minimum Deposit
Rate Fixed For 8-89 Days

SECURED INVESTMENT: YES

Your investment in Southern Federal Liquid Assets Fund is 100% secured by United States securities. Your earned interest plus your investment will be deposited, in a passbook account at the end of the term you specify.

THIS OBLIGATION IS NOT A SAVINGS ACCOUNT OR DEPOSIT AND IS NOT INSURED BY THE FEDERAL SAVINGS AND LOAN INSURANCE CORPORATION.

Bay Little Theatre to climax season with 'Bells Are Ringing'

The Bay St. Louis Little Theatre will stage 'Bells Are Ringing' as its final production of the current season.

The musical comedy will be presented at the playhouse on Boardman Avenue July 9, 10 and 11 and July 16, 17 and 18, with curtain time at 8:15 p.m. The production stars Kathleen (Topsy) Stieffel and Ken Rayborn in the roles of the zany "Susanswer-phone" do gooder, Ella Peterson and the ne'er do well playwright Jeff Moss.

Other members of the cast include Celeste Proulx, Frank Gray, Karen Ladner, Richard Taylor, Bobby Poole, Clyde Ladner, Lottie Edan, Dede Ladner, David Palmisano, Sherie Laadner, Kissy Byrd, Les Parker, Rickey Ladner, Vickie Wilkerson, Sherry Schwabacher, Tim Bourgeois, Christy Stringer and Beth Favre.

The show abounds with song and dance numbers including "Just In Time," "The Party's Over," "My Cha-Cha," and "I'm Going Back."

Mike Cuevas is stage director with Mary Howard, musical director and Vic Frankiewicz Jr., technical director.

Admission will be $4, with tickets available at the door. Season ticket holders must be present by 7:45 p.m. to be assured of seats on performance evenings.
